

I'm opposed to these rule changes as I understand them. My concern is that there needs to be more safeguards to encourage more voices.

Right now, for example, when I watch the local Fox station, they spend at least one or two news stories on the local news plugging Fox shows like American Idol. Why? Well, it's a Fox owned station.

They have viewership and they will plug.

I'm not generally against ownership consolidation per se, but I would like to see some compromises on encouraging more voices in the dialog.
